website. How about your own website? Have you used that phrase on your own website?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. What about only Daniele Prosciutto meets these demanding standards; have you used that on your own website?

A. I don't know. I don't think so but I'm not sure.

Q. At the bottom of Page 6, there are pictures of different hams, different prosciutto?

A. That's correct.

Q. Maybe you could go from left to right and tell us which prosciutto they are?

A. The first one is the President's Reserve.

Q. That's made by Daniele?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. What's the difference between the President's Reserve and the Daniele Prosciutto?

A. The difference is that the President's Reserve is aged 400 days.

Q. Then you have Daniele prosciutto, I see?

A. Yup.

Q. Then there is one lying down horizontally which is hard to see, what it is, do you know what it is?

A. It is a fillet of a prosciutto, it's a fillet without anything.
Q. And then what's the one?
A. Cento per cento prosciutto, 100 percent it means in Italian, because it's shankless, skinless, fatless, so you can slice 100 percent.
Q. What's the one next to it?
A. Prosciutto di Parma.
Q. Why is that there?
A. Because I'm selling prosciutto di Parma.
Q. What's next to that?
A. Is the Principe prosciutto we're discussing.
Q. And then next to that are the presliced?
A. That's correct.
Q. Is there anything in this brochure that indicates that Daniele is selling Principe prosciutto or Parma prosciutto, other than those two pictures?
A. No, sir.
MR. SELTER: I think we asked for copies of all labels of Daniele Prosciutto and we didn't get -- I think all we got is the Daniele Prosciutto. I was wondering, can I get labels from the President's Reserve and the --
THE WITNESS: Definitely.
